

Sport Consumer Behavior
Galen Trail & Jeff James
Table of Contents

Section I – Consumer Behavior

Chapter 1 - Introduction to Sport Consumer Behavior

Pervasiveness/Significance of Sport Consumer Behavior
Suites and Club Seats
Media Consumption
Other Media
Team Licensed Merchandise
Concession Consumption
Naming Rights
Sponsorship
The Crux of the Issue
Summary

Chapter 2 - Theories of Consumer Behavior

Definition of Sport Consumer Behavior
Application of Sport Consumer Behavior - Why Study Human Behavior
Marketing Decisions
Consumer Information
Understanding Consumer Behavior
Shaping Consumer Behavior
The Study of Consumer Behavior - Where We Have Been
How To Study Consumer Behavior
A Variety of Models
 Market Response Models
 Cognitive Information Models
 Pure Affect Models
 Cognitive Hierarchy Models
 Low-Involvement Category Models
Models Based on Interaction Effects
 Step Model of Advertising
 Motivation for Consumption Model
 Means-End Chain Theory
 Hierarchical Model of Consumer Goods
Identity Theory
Social Identity Theory
Theory of Planned Behavior
Attitude Theory
Models of Sport Consumption
Model of Sport Consumption Behavior
References

Chapter 3 - Fan Socialization

Socialization - A Fundamental Understanding
Fan Socialization - What Do We Know?
Fan Socialization Across the Lifecycle
Childhood
Adolescence
Young Adults
Older Adults
Childhood
Connection to a Team or Sport
References

Chapter 4 - Market Segmentation

Why is Market Segmentation a Topic in a Sport Consumer Behavior Book?
What is Segmentation and Market Segmentation?
Segmentation
Market Segmentation
Two Approaches to Market Segmentation
Criteria for Market Segmentation
Bases of Market Segmentation
Demographic Characteristics
Geographic Segmentation
Psychographic Information
Behavior
Sport Consumer Segments

- Non-fans
- Interested Individuals
- Attached Fans
- Loyal Fans
- Cross-Over Effects
- References

Section II – Motivators for Consumer Behavior

Chapter 5 - Culture and Subcultures

- Culture
 - Identification
 - Social Identity Theory
 - Identity Formation Theory
 - Acculturation
 - Cultural Assimilation
 - Summary
- Subcultures
 - Nationality
 - Race and Racial Identity
 - Ethnicity
 - Sex as a Subculture
 - Religious Subcultures
 - Geographic and Regional Subcultures
 - Age Subcultures
 - Sexual Orientation
 - Household Income
 - Occupation
 - Education
 - Summary
- References

Chapter 6 - The Influence of Personal Needs, Values, and Goals on Sport Consumption

- Overview of the Chapter
- Personal Needs
- Personal Values
- Influence of Values on Consumer Behavior
 - Aesthetics
 - Ambition
 - Benevolence
 - Commitment
 - Conservatism
 - Freedom
 - Hedonism
 - Moderation
 - Openness
 - Patriotism
 - Pragmatism
 - Self-Control
 - Self-Direction
 - Spiritualism
 - Stimulation
 - Tolerance
 - Work Ethic
- Personal Goals
 - Achievement
 - Companionship
 - Democracy
 - Environmentalism
 - Individual Safety
 - Materialism
 - Personal Financial Security
 - Physical Well-Being
 - Power
 - Prosperity
 - Social Equality
- Relevance to Marketing Strategy and Applications
- Summary
- References

Chapter 7 - The Influence of Motivation on Sport Consumption

The Measurement of Motives
Motives for Both Fans and Spectators
Acquisition of Knowledge
Escape
Interest in a Specific Sport
Interest in the Level of Sport
Nostalgia
Physical Attractiveness of the Participants
Physical Skill of Participants
Social Interaction
Style of Play
Supporting a Cause
Entertainment
Motives for Being a Spectator
Aesthetic Quality of the Event
Participant Aggression
Drama
Economics
Motives for Being a Fan
Interest in Players
Interest in a Specific Team
National Pride
Role Modeling by the Athletes
Vicarious Achievement
Relationships Among Motives Model
Attempted Reduction of Motives
Relevance to Marketing Strategy and Applications
Summary
References

Chapter 8 - Consumer Perceptions

What's in a Name? Ask the Tampa Bay Rays!
Can a Viking Be Child Friendly?
Introduction
What is Consumer Perception?
Why is Perception Important?
Perception Defined
What are the Important Elements of Perception?
Exposure
– Selective and voluntary exposure
– Voluntary exposure
Attention
– Stimulus factors
– Individual factors
– Situational factors
Interpretation
– Individual characteristics
– Situational characteristics
– Stimulus characteristics
Bringing It All Together: The Perception Process
Perception and Sport Consumption
Perceived Value and Purchase Intention
Branding
Why Is Branding Important to Consumers?
Why Is Branding Important to Business?
Closing
References

Chapter 9 - Market Demand Characteristics and External Constraints

Constraints
Intrapersonal Constraints
Interpersonal Constraints
Structural Constraints
A New Model of Constrains and Motivators
Internal Constraints
Lack of Knowledge
Lack of Attendance Partner
Lack of Interest From Others
Lack of Team Success

External Motivators

Aesthetics
Drama
Player Behavior
Role Models
Advertising
Promotions

External Constraints

Parking
Location of the Venue
Traffic
Accessing to Public Transportation
Cost

External Constraints - Other Alternatives

Exercising and Recreation Opportunities
Other Leisure Activities
Attending Other Similar Sporting Events
Attending Other Dissimilar Sporting Events
Watching Other Sports on TV
Games Being Televised
Games Being On the Radio
Commitment
Bringing It All Together

References

Section III – Post-Consumption

Chapter 10 - Expectancy (Dis)Confirmation and Satisfaction

Expectations for the Columbus Blue Jackets
Guaranteed Win Night
"Our Fans Have Gotten Spoiled"
Overview
Expectancies
Expectancy Confirmation/Disconfirmation
Affect/Mood
Satisfaction
 Satisfaction with Venue Experience
Closing Thoughts
References

Chapter 11 - Self-esteem Behaviors & Behavioral Intentions

Cleveland Browns' Fans: A Case of BIRGing
Washington Redskins Fans: A Case of CORFing
Dallas Cowboys Fans: A Case of Blasting?
Overview
BIRGing
CORFing
Blasting
BIRFing and CORSing
Summary
References